Grievance Description

Respected Sir/Madam,

I am writing this grievance with reference to the recent reply issued through CPGRAMS regarding the validity of medical education in Georgia, I am an MBBS Abroad consultant and have been guiding Indian students for several years. I aim to ensure students choose medical universities and countries that lawfully comply with all the FMGL Regulations 2021, so they do not face problems obtaining their medical licence in India after graduation.

Georgia fulfills all FMGL 2021 regulations, but the recent reply from NMC stated that Independent practice, if given after PG, then the student has to do PG in Georgia, MD degree will not be sufficient.

Junior Doctor is a designation and not a degree just like in India, they are called Junior Residents.
1) If Indian students receive the same degree and the same professional rights as Georgian citizens, then will it satisfy the requirement of being at par with the locals under FMGL Regulation 4(b)?

India permits an MBBS graduate to practise independently after completing the applicable internship and registration requirements. This is India's system, but every country does not follow the same system.
2) The Embassy of Georgia in India has already given clarity of the applicable rules, will the NMC review the same and determine it with reference to its own guidelines? (attached)

If the qualification is insufficient, kindly issue an urgent public advisory on the NMC website for existing and prospective students.
3) I understand the NMC may not want to endorse any country by saying that this degree is approved, but is it not the responsibility of the NMC to annouces the MD Degree of Georgia and other similar countries insufficient for safeguarding the interest of students, so they do not make the mistake of joining this program?

I am not requesting any relaxation in the FMGL Regulations 2021. I am only requesting a clear interpretation of the law so that students can make the right decisions.
